Students Recognized As Winners Of Lowe’s Hometown Hero Awards

WILKESBORO—Lowe’s Home Improvement Warehouse, in conjunction with the North Carolina High School Athletic Association (NCHSAA), has selected additional winners in the Lowe’s Hometown Heroes program.

Megan Stallings, from Perquimans County High School, was chosen as the recipient of the December Lowe’s Hometown Hero award. Jacqui Lanningham of North Wilkes was the January winner. Lindsay Dehart of Southern Alamance earned the February award.

Lowe’s Hometown Heroes program acknowledges the accomplishments of North Carolina high school students who excel in the combined areas of academics, community service and athletics. Each of the schools of the honorees will receive $1,000 Lowe’s gift cards on behalf of their student-athlete.

“When you think about a student who is active in athletics, excels in academics and is involved in the community as well, you automatically think of Megan,” said Carolyn Rogers, who for four years coached Megan on Perquimans’ volleyball team. “Megan is an outstanding student, always willing to go the extra mile for anyone. She is the type of student you want to have helping you.”

Second in her senior class, Megan has a 4.2 GPA and is captain of the volleyball team. She attended the North Carolina Governor’s School’s English program in summer 2002. As a junior, Megan was one of a dozen students selected from across the state to observe the inner workings of state government in the North Carolina Governor’s Page Program. As a sophomore, Megan worked 40 hours as a page in the North Carolina House of Representatives. There she saw firsthand how laws are made.

President of the Beta Club, Megan has helped organize food drives. She plays percussion in the school band and is an active member of Corinth Baptist Church. The only senior on Perquimans County High School’s volleyball team, Megan rallied the younger players and the team won this year’s conference championship.

“Megan Stallings is a one-of-a-kind student who is at the top of her class academically, is a leader and mentor to her peers on and off the volleyball court and makes time to lend a hand in her community,” said Gray Abercrombie, Lowe’s divisional marketing manager. “She deserves the Lowe’s Hometown Hero award and we are pleased to recognize her accomplishments this way.”

A junior at North Wilkes, Jacqui has earned straight A’s in all but one class and makes the Honor Roll each term. She has lettered in basketball, volleyball and track, and even became track team co-captain her sophomore year.

“It is unusual for a sophomore to hold this position,” said Michael Greene, Jacqui’s head track coach and assistant basketball coach. “Jacqui was selected because she was one of the top scorers in track her freshman year and because of her leadership abilities. Jacqui is very mature for her age. She has the respect of all of her teammates.”

Greene, also a regional coordinator for Make-A-Wish of Central and Western North Carolina, has watched Jacqui volunteer countless hours working on two annual Make-A-Wish Reunions as well as raising funds and collecting donations of stuffed animals.

Jacqui has led or been a lead participant in many of the school’s Key Club service projects, including the annual Powder Puff Count fundraiser and coat donation projects and stuffed animal drives. The daughter of Ted and Lisa Proffit of North Wilkesboro, Jacqui is active in her church and also works part-time in an area drug store.

A senior at Southern Alamance, Lindsay is a three-sport athlete who spends equal amounts of time on non-athletic school and community activities. Lindsay has held an office on the Southern Alamance student government for four years, and this year was voted student body president. She’s helped organize canned food drives and helped coordinate student council efforts to adopt needy families at Christmas.

“Lindsay is a real leader on our campus academically, athletically and in a number of other ways,” said Kent Byrd, Southern Alamance’s principal. Lindsay aspires to become a high school teacher, he said. “It’s wonderful when a child like Lindsay, who has the ability to do so many different things with her life and career, would like to enter a profession where she helps others. But that is very much what Lindsay is about.”

As a four-year member of her school’s D.R.E.A.M. Team (Daring to Role model Excellence as Athletic Mentors), Lindsay is this year’s co-coordinator and a role model and mentor to hundreds of younger students in the community. The team, a select group of scholar/athletes who are committed to academic and athletic excellence and drug and alcohol-free lifestyles, visits elementary and middle schools to extol the benefits of education and athletic participation and also warn students of the dangers of drug and alcohol usage.

Lowe’s Home Improvement Warehouse, in conjunction with the Carolina Panthers, has joined together with the NCHSAA to offer the Lowe’s Hometown Heroes recognition program. This program seeks to acknowledge high school students in North Carolina who have begun building their own strong foundations through personal commitment to their local community, academics and athletics.

Lowe’s, a Fortune 100 company with 2001 sales of $22.1 billion, has more than 800 stores in 44 states. For more information, visit Lowes.com.
North Carolina Athletic Directors Association Names Ninth Hall Of Fame Class

Induction at Annual State Conference in April

Five members have been named by the North Carolina High School Athletic Directors Association as the ninth class for induction into its own Hall of Fame.

The new NCADA Hall of Famers include Tim Brayboy of Cary, Hilda Worthington of Farmville, Roger Thrift of New Bern, Spike Corbin of Wilmington and Richard Murray of Ahoskie.

The five will be recognized at the annual North Carolina High School Athletic Directors Association state conference at the Atlantic Beach Sheraton, with the Hall of Fame banquet scheduled for April 8.

The NCADA Hall of Fame has been established to recognize achievement and excellence for athletic administration. The inductees are honored at the NCADA’s annual state convention, and a permanent display honoring the athletic directors’ Hall of Fame is located in the offices of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association in Chapel Hill. The new class brings to 43 the number in the Hall.

This year’s inductees include:

Tim Brayboy
A long-time resident of Cary, Tim Brayboy grew up in Pembroke and was an outstanding athlete at Pembroke State, from which he graduated in 1964.

He taught and coached at both the junior high and senior high levels. From 1972 to 1995 worked at the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction. He worked statewide with middle schools and junior highs on athletic rules and regulations and also conducted staff development and in-service training for coaches and administrators.

Brayboy was also an outstanding high school and college game official. He officiated football for 35 years and basketball for 30 seasons.

E.A. “Spike” Corbin
Spike Corbin put together an excellent career in coaching and administration, primarily in the Wilmington area.

He coached Williston High to state championships in football, basketball and baseball in the old North Carolina High School Athletic Conference, and then won an NCHSAA baseball crown, leading Hoggard to the championships.

He served as an athletic director for many years, including serving as the director for New Hanover County from 1974 to 1980. The Hoggard baseball field is named in his honor.

Richard Murray
Richard Murray enjoyed a 38-year career at Ahoskie and then Herford County High School as a teacher, coach and athletic administrator.

A graduate of both Chowan College and Atlantic Christian, Murray has been active in the NCADA, serving on its Board of Directors, as well as on the board of the North Carolina Coaches Association. He also served on the Endowment Board for the NCHSAA.

A member of the Chowan Hall of Fame, Murray has also been busily involved in church and civic affairs in the Ahoskie area.

Roger Thrift
Roger Thrift earned 12 varsity letters as an athlete at Chapel Hill High School before graduating from East Carolina and then a stellar career in athletics.

Thrift was president of the North Carolina Coaches Association in 1976-77 and also served on the NCADA Board of Directors.

He served as an athletic director for almost 30 years, including at Murfreesboro High for two years, Williamston for six, and then had a 20-year stint as AD at New Bern.

Thrift is a member of both the East Carolina University Sports Hall of Fame and the New Bern High School Sports Hall of Fame.

Hilda Worthington
Born in Calhoun, Georgia, Hilda Worthington was an outstanding coach and administrator at Farmville Central from the early 1970’s to the late ‘90’s.

A graduate of Broughton High in Raleigh and a 1960 graduate of East Carolina, Worthington served as athletic director of Farmville Central for 17 years, one of the first women to serve in that capacity. She also coached her women’s basketball teams to over 300 victories and two state runner-up finishes.

She has served on various NCHSAA committees and also directed numerous conference and sectional tournaments. She is a member of the NCHSAA Hall of Fame.

Honorees in the charter class, inducted in 1995, included NCHSAA executive director Charlie Adams, former Charlotte-Mecklenburg director of athletics Dave Harris, Russ Blunt of Durham’s Hillside High School, long-time Greenville Rose athletic director and NCADA executive secretary Richard “Bud” Phillips; former High Point athletic administrator A.J. “Tony” Simeon, and Norma Harbin of Winston-Salem, the first female athletic director at a 4-A school in North Carolina.

The 1999 inductees were Dave Johnson of Charlotte, Glenn Nixon of Clayton, Bob Sawyer of Greensboro and George Whitfield of Greenville, while in 2000 Don Patrick of Newton-Conover, Bill Carver of Fayetteville and Simon Terrell of Chapel Hill joined the Hall.

The 2001 inductees included Carl Bolick of Charlotte, Herman Bryson of Winston-Salem, Ed Peeler of Shelby and Chip Gill of Durham. Last year’s honorees were Dick Knox of Chapel Hill, Jack Musten of Winston-Salem, Don Saine of Gastonia and Sue Shinn of High Point.

Schools Recognized For Outstanding Sportsmanship At NCHSAA Championships

CHAPEL HILL—The North Carolina High School Athletic Association has announced the recipients of the NCHSAA Championship Sportsmanship awards for the fall sports.

The awards are based on exemplary sportsmanship exhibited by players, coaches and fans of schools competing for a state title at one of the NCHSAA's championship venues. Each school receives a certificate noting the accomplishment.

In some cases, the awards are not done by classification; for instance, if all of the championships are held at one site, such as soccer, then one winner is chosen from among all the teams competing there. A special committee on site at each championship makes the recommendations.

“We are pleased to continue our emphasis on sportsmanship and congratulate these teams on their achievements,” said Que Tucker, NCHSAA associate executive director and director of the Student Services Program, which administers the program.

Keep It Green: Athletic Field Management Practices

Nearly all the athletic fields in North Carolina suffer the devastating effects of heat, drought, flood, and frost on an annual basis. This year seems to be one of the worst in recent memory for damage to athletic fields.

Perhaps even more damaging to ball fields is wear and tear from high school marching bands, extra-curricular activities and vandalism. How does a coach or athletic director ensure the safety of the athletes competing on the fields? By maintaining a high quality turf surface.

The North Carolina Sports Turf Association is a non-profit group of sports turf professionals (university crop science professors, minor-league baseball groundskeepers, and others), which provides agronomic advice to coaches and athletic directors. The association can guide you through the growing season, providing timely recommendations on management practices. The result: you create a safe and beautiful playing surface that your athletes deserve and your rivals will envy.

For more information, simply visit our website (www.EasternNCSportsTurf.org) and fill out the information request form. One of our sports turf professionals will answer your questions and assist you in developing an annual ball field management plan tailored to your site free of charge. Don’t forget to register to receive our monthly email sports turf tip. Keep it green!

South View Names Gym In Honor Of Ron Miller

HOPE MILLS—South View High School’s gymnasium is now known as Miller Gymnasium.

The school renamed the facility in honor of Ron Miller, one of the state’s most successful basketball coaches, at one of its February home games.

Miller retired from coaching two years ago and compiled a brilliant 624-385 mark as a head coach. That included 26 years at the South View helm with a 413-247 mark at the Hope Mills school and a 1993 North Carolina High School Athletic Association state 4-A championship.

Eddie Dees of South View served as master of ceremonies, and athletic director Ronnie Luck and principal Bob Barnes both spoke.

Macky Hall, chairman of the Cumberland County Board of Education, officially unveiled the plaque.

The Story Of A REAL High School Basketball Game

Okay, we went to a real high school basketball game. Let me explain.

My wife wanted an evening out one night in February, so I—being the model husband and wanting to spare no expense to provide the best possible entertainment—quickly noted it was a Tuesday night.

After a lengthy deliberation of several seconds, a great idea occurred to me. “How about a high school basketball game?” I suggested.

And being the wonderful person and former high school cheerleader my wife is, she thought that was a great idea, well, maybe that’s overstated; let’s just say that she didn’t say no, and went along.

So we traveled to a local game between two schools just a few miles apart, conference rivals and a game with major playoff implications.

It was a closely contested battle, with no more than about six points ever separating the teams. It was enjoyable to watch and pretty intense, even if play from time to time got a little sloppy.

But it was a real high school game. I’m sure, and here are a few reasons why:

—when we came in, there was not a single Hummer parked in the school parking lot; obviously, I didn’t even look to see if there were one in the faculty parking lot
— the visiting team arrived in a bona fide, regulation, official activity bus; no limousine or other luxury mode of transportation here
—no highlights of the game will ever be seen on SportsCenter
—there was no posturing, preening, or chest thumping for the television cameras; wait a minute, there WERE no television cameras. The media attending the event were a couple of local newspaper guys who regularly cover this beat
—none of the players—well, there could be possibly one or two—will ever go on to play in college, but still the teams competed just as hard as they could and played an entertaining brand of basketball. Thus the idea of “going on to play at the next level” was not really pertinent to this game, and especially not the astronomically long odds that anybody would ever be able to play professionally
—good sportsmanship was evident; on several occasions players from one team helped up a player from the other team who had gotten knocked to the floor
—there were no representatives of shoe companies, nattily dressed and with cell phones to their ears, anywhere in sight
—concessions were ridiculously inexpensive and served by pleasant people who had volunteered to operate the concession stand

We thoroughly enjoyed the evening and as we drove home, I contemplated what we had witnessed: a REAL high school basketball game.

And it hit me. This is the kind of thing we’re really all about, because what we had experienced here is our norm: kids playing because they enjoy it, students from their own communities giving their best efforts, being led by teacher-coaches, keeping things in their proper perspective.

Our norm is not teams flying to games, being paid appearance fees, national television, unending hype. That’s fine, but that is certainly not the reality for most schools I know.

What I like is REAL high school basketball.

And who knows? Next time my wife wants to go out, maybe it’ll be a Friday night during another part of the school year. You know I’ll spare no expense to provide the best possible entertainment.

North Carolina Rolls To 28-0 Shutout Win In Shrine Bowl

ROCK HILL—Independence quarterback Chris Leak was selected as the Most Valuable Player in the 66th annual Shrine Bowl of the Carolinas at District Three Stadium as the North Carolina All-Stars rolled past their South Carolina counterparts 28-0.

Leak, who the week before had led his Independence team to its third straight NCHSAA state football crown and was the championship game MVP for the third straight year, completed 15 of 25 passes for 175 yards and three touchdowns.

Rocky Mount’s Mike Mason caught six passes for 54 yards while Ragdale’s Emmanuel Byers had four receptions for 54 yards. Crest’s Travis Lee grabbed three for 44 yards, two of which went for scores, and Butler’s Kenny Moore had a TD reception among his three catches good for 34 yards.

North Carolina led 14-0 at the half after a three-yard run by Parkland’s Jed Bines and an eight-yard TD pass from Leak to Lee. Freedom’s Stuart Mull kicked the PAT after each of the four Tar Heel touchdowns.

Richlands defensive end Mario Williams and Wilson Beddingfield defensive back Pierre Parker were among the defensive standouts for North Carolina. Parker was named the Tar Heel defensive MVP after picking off a pass at the goal line to thwart a South Carolina drive and returned it 55 yards.
T.C. Roberson Stays Unbeaten, Wins 3-A Men’s Soccer Crown

RALEIGH—Senior forward Brian Fitzmaurice had a goal and an assist to lead Asheville T.C. Roberson to a 2-0 victory over Jacksonville White Oak and capture the North Carolina High School Athletic Association men’s 3-A soccer championship at Broughton High School.

Fitzmaurice was named the Most Valuable Player of the championship as Roberson finished a perfect 28-0 season. It was Roberson’s fourth visit to the NCHSAA soccer finals but the Rams’ first state title after runner-up finishes in 1992, ’93 and ’96.

Todd Byard was credited with the first goal, after an assist by Fitzmaurice, less than four minutes in to put the Rams ahead 1-0. Then Fitzmaurice’s one-timer in the box after a corner kick, his 30th goal of the season, pushed the margin to 2-0 with just over 24 minutes left to play.

The Rams outshot White Oak 20-12 on the day and both keepers, Ben Barlick of White Oak and Matthew Novchich of TCR, had nine saves apiece.

Veteran T.C. Roberson head coach Rod Wilcher earned his 300th career victory with his team’s win.

White Oak, which was also in its fourth NCHSAA men’s soccer final, closed the season with a 17-8 record.

Swansboro Overwhelms Charlotte Catholic In 2-A

CARY—Chris Mobley of Swansboro had the hat trick to lead the Pirates to a 4-1 victory over Charlotte Catholic for the North Carolina High School Athletic Association’s men’s state 2-A soccer championship at SAS Stadium.

Mobley, selected as the Most Valuable Player in the championship, staked his team to a 1-0 lead when he knocked in a rebound at the 10:34 mark, and it stayed that way until halftime.

Swansboro took a 2-0 advantage on Mobley’s second goal, as he scored again on a rebound, and then blew it open with a pair of goals within a 70-second span.

First Mark Ellington found the back of the net from 18 yards out, his 32nd goal of the season, to move the Pirates in front 3-0 at the 59:53 mark.

Then shortly thereafter Ellington had a perfect centering pass to Mobley, who knocked it in for his 33rd goal of the year to make it 4-0 at 61:03.

Catholic got on the board late in the game on a Scott Penrose goal, with an assist from Brian Lux.

These two schools have established themselves as NCHSAA state soccer powers and have developed a championship rivalry, as they were meeting for the 10th time in the finals. The Pirates have a 7-3 edge in those games.

Swansboro finished the season with a 26-2 record in winning its seventh NCHSAA state men’s soccer crown. The Pirates, making their 12th championship appearance and seventh visit in the last eight years, avenged their loss in last year’s final to Charlotte Catholic.

Catholic closed its season with a 20-3-2 record. The Cougars were also in their 12th championship game and were making their eighth trip to the finals in the last nine seasons.

Lejeune Outlasts Albemarle In Penalty Kick Shooting To Claim 1-A Soccer Championship

CARY—Lejeune and Albemarle battled into the second round of penalty kicks before Lejeune prevailed in the North Carolina High School Athletic Association state 1-A soccer championship at SAS Stadium.

Regulation ended in a 1-1 tie, and then the teams struggled through two overtime periods and two sudden-death periods before going to the shootout.

After a scoreless first half, Chris Peterson of Lejeune flicked it into the goal off a pass from William Roberts to give the Devilpups a 1-0 lead at 63:51, and then just six minutes later Casey Davis of Albemarle got the equalizer with a strong shot from 20 yards out.

Both clubs made four of five penalty kicks in the first shootout, but Lejeune keeper David Perez came up with a couple of saves in the second round and Brandon Wendling's PK finally enabled the Devilpups to prevail 7-6 in the shootout for what is officially recorded as a 2-1 victory.

Perez was chosen as the MVP of the 1-A championship.

Lejeune won its first official NCHSAA men's soccer title, with its only other championship in 1967 when the tournament was an invitational that included some non-NCHSAA teams.

The Devilpups completed an improbable run to the title after starting the season with five consecutive losses. It was Lejeune's third victory in shootouts in five playoff matches as the Devilpups finished 13-11-3.

Albemarle lost for only the second time in 26 starts.
